COUŁD NOT REST NIGHT OR DAY

With Irritating Skin Humor-Whole Body Affected — Scalp Itched All the Time and Hair Began to Fall Out-Wonderful Result From

APPLICATION OF CUTICURA REMEDIES

"I am never without Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment since I tried them last summer. About the latter part of July my whole body began to itch. I did not take much notice of it at first, but it began to get worse all the time, and then I began to get uneasy and tried all kinds of baths and other remedies that were recommended for skin humors; but I became worse all the time. My hair began to fall out and my scalp itched all the time. Especially at night, just as soon as I would get in bed and get warm, my whole body would begin to itch and my finger nails would keep it irritated, and it was not long before I could not rest night or day. A friend asked me to try the Cuticura Remedies, and I did, and the first application helped me wonderfully. For about four weeks I would take a hot bath every night and then apply the Cuticura Ointment to my whole body; and I kept getting better, and by the time I used four boxes of Cuticura I was entirely cured, and me hair stopped falling out, but I continue to use the Cuticura on my scalp. It keeps all dandruff out and scalp is always clean. I always use Cuticura Ointment on my face after shaving, and have found nothing to equal it. I will never be without it." D.E. Blankenship, that applied to the Supreme Court of Appeals, said Mr. Montague. He argued at length along this line in his appeal for the mayor, who prompted him now and then with suggestions. "Discourteously," Said Smith.

"Discourteously," Said Smith.

Reluctantly, Mr. Harry Smith appeared in the case in the light of prosecuting the mayor. He said that he was a friend of Mr. McCarthy, notwithstanding the fact that, the latter had treated him discourteously when he called at the mayor's office a few days ago on a business matter, "I have always admired the mayor, but I think he makes mistakes like other men, and he should take the consequences of his acts.

men, and he should take the consequences of his acts.

"All of his learned counsel's sophistics as to the law cannot wipe out the fact that the mayor is guilty of contempt of court. The mayor is an experienced man, an old man, and he knows the ways of the courts. He ought to know that the language he used to Mr. Seckelman would not be tolerated in any court. This is a case, however, for your honor to decide. The offense is against the dignity of this court and not against Mr. Seckelman. The mayor is not being tried for using any language to this reporter, but for being in contempt of this court."

Mr. Smith spoke glowly and very emphatically, and the crowd was apparently in sympathy with his remarks. "As to the humiliation attached tor the publication of the Mayor's conviction, declared Mr. Smith, McCarthy's may come and McCarthy's may go, but this court will go on forever. The greatest question is not the feeling of the Mayor but the majesty of the aw and the authority of the bench. My learned friend on the other side has said that what would be contempt in the Supreme Court would not be an offense here. I take issue with him on this point. It is all more the important that cognizance be taken of such action here, for it is here that all cleases of people come; this is the court of the people."

"Why Not See Williams?"

"Why Not See Williams?"

Mr. Smith reached a climax when he exclaimed: "Why did he Mayor single out this reporter (pointing to Seckelman), to vent his feelings. The reporter did not even write the objectionable headlines. The editor does

Why didn't the Mayor go to Alfred

B. Williams and call him an infamous liar?

"I have done that a hundred times publicly," shot forth the Mayor who was seated in the witness chair listening to the argument of Mr. Smith, "Well, Mr. Williams I sa friend of mine, and I believe I know the man. I venture to say that the Mayor never told him to his face that he was an infamous liar, or any other kind of liar," said Mr. Smith, and the crowd had to be restored to order.

May ir McCarthy did not reply to this remark of the attorney.

Mr. Smith continuing, said that it was no fault of the Mayor's that a 1st fight was not precipitated in the Police Court in the very presence of the presiding justice, "He did what he court to bring such a thing about. There are a thousand, aye five thousand men in Richmond,

"Personally, I would regret to see fine imposed upon the Mayor, I hay fine imposed upon the Mayor. I have known him for years, and would be grieved to see him fined. And if Your Honor can do so without lessening the dignity of this court, I would ask that no fine be imposed. The question is for the court to decide whether the Mayor is in contempt or not," concluded the attorney for Seckelman.

Applause, quickly stopped by the experience of the court of the court.

Applause, quickly stopped by the at-aches of the court, followed Mr. Smith's marks.
Mr. Montague briefly replied to the

The Fine Imposed.

Every eye in the court room was coussed on Justice Cru'ch?! id when Mr. Montague closed, and amid profound silence the justice said:

THE ORANGE AND KEYSVILLE ROAD

Evidence That This Cross Country Line Will Soon Be Built.

THE PROMOTERS NOT KNOWN

It Is Supposed the Tidewater Railroad is Behind the Scheme.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) ARVONIA, VA., January 26.—There are evidences that the long projected Orange and Keysville Railroad, of which the present Buckingham Branch is a link, will shortly be built. It is understood that route, several times surveyed, and make areful estimates of every mile of the proposed road. This work will be done at once, and it is thought that with a favorable report, which is more than likely to obtain, the road will be built.

It is not known here who the promoters of the scheme are, but it is the impression that the new Tidewater Railroad is back of it. The road, if built, would tap the Tidewater not far from Keysville, in Charlotte county, and would connect the road directly by the shortest route with the

The Buckingham Branch, from Bremo to Arvonia, a distance of four miles, was built in 1885, and immediately began to do an immense business in the hauling of slate and lumber. In 1881 the road was extended to Rosney, a point not far from Willis Mountain, in Buckingham county, seventeen miles from Arvonia. The entire length of the road is now twenty-three miles. There are two trains each way every day, and excellent service is maintained. The road does a large freight business, hauling vast quantities of slate from this place and lumber from the other end of the line.

The entire line was surveyed through from Orange to Keysville, and in boom times, about 1892, the section of the road between Farmville and Hampden-Bidney was built; but the track was never laid. Much of that work was washed away, but The Buckingham Branch, from Breme was built, but the track was never laid. Much of that work was washed away, but it could be gotten in shape again without much expense.

It has long been thought that a line of railroad connecting the Southern, at Keyswille, and the Norfolk and Western, at Farmville, with the Southern and the Chesapeake and Ohlo, at Orange, would be of great advantage. Arvonia needs a line south to ship thence the large quantities of slate that are sent from here to all the Southern States. The slate has now to be shipped to Richmond or Lynchburg before it can start on its journey to the South or to the North.

One day dast week three sets of bank promoters were here, looking after the establishment of a bank. No one of the three parties knew anything of the contemplations of the others. It is not known that any of the three companies definitely determined to locate here, though it is generally understeed to be Almost the entire day was consumed in identifying reports and diaries filed by Samuel as a deputy collector.

There was a protracted legal argument over the admission of a declaration of an allegel co-conspirator of Samuel that he would continue his blockade distillery, since he had fixed the revenue officers and expected no trouble. Judge Boyd excluded the testimony as too vague and indefinite. The only other testimony of interest was that of a justice of the peace in Wilkes county, who testified that Samuel's reputation as an officer was bad, and there were numbers of illeit distilleries in his neighborhood. On cross-examination, explaining why, as a magistrate, he had not issued warrants for the blockaders, he said he could not get them served. There was no constable and the deputy sheriff in his township was himself a blockader.

and Robbery. (Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
PETERSBURG, VA., January 26.—The Petersburg Medical Faculty has decided that a member cannot, without violating its rules, make a contract for medical services to a secret fraternal order.
The making of fraternal order, by

Its rules, make a contract for medical services to a secret fraternal order. The making of medical contracts by members of the faculty recently brought the question before the organization. Dr. D. D. Willeox, of this city, whose leg was broken by the fall of a horse yesterday at Coggin Hall, David Dunlop's home, on James River, in Prince George county, was brought to the Home for the Sick here this afternoon.

Captain P. C. Hoy, an honored citizen and Confederate veteran, became dangerously ill last night at his home, on Lombard Street, with a sudden attack of heart trouble, and for some time was in a critical condition, from which he was rescued by vigorous medical treatment. Captain Hoy had been at his office in the morning and afternoon. He is better to-day, but his condition is still serious.

ing for the Petersburg National Bank, at the corner of Sycamore and East Tabb Streets. The contract has been awarded, and workmen have commenced clearing the ground.

Bishop A. M. Randolph will conduct services at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church (colored), next Sunday morning, and will preach and confirm at St. Paul's Church Sunday evening.

Herbert W. Mackarey was elected and installed last night as master of finance of Union Lodge, Knights of Pythias, succeeding Cabell C. Cashon, who has resigned after nine years of service in that office.

signed after nine years of service in that office.

A. M. Green, Jr., associated with the commission house of Arrington & Green, has accepted a position as traveling salesman for a wholesale Baltimore house, and will soon leave to begin his new work.

Three small colored boys, the oldest about thirteen, were before the mayor this morning on charges of house-breaking and robbery, having been arrested last night by Police Officer J. J. Heelan for robbing Miss ida Avant's confectionery store on Washington Street. A good licking was the punishment ordered to be applied by their parents at the police station.

the police station. Entertainment at City Home.

An entertainment was given at the City Home last night for the benefit of the inmates at that institution.

The programme was as follows, and was a most enjoyable one:

Newspaper Tributes.

On the demise of the late Henry Clay Payne, a concern in New York gathered from the papers published throughout the United States 4,685 newspaper stories of the life and career of the deceased. These items were carefully mounted on Irish linen leaves and bound in 6 volumes, 400 pages to the book. A cover of genuine seal was appropriately lettered in gold and the entire material, representing the work of many people for several months, has just been delivered to Mrs. Payne at Mflwaukee.

Mr. Burrelle, who makes specialty of this unique method of preserving family history, also compiled four volumes containing the letters, telegrams and cards of condolence received by the family, all constituting a family heirloom that will be handed down to future genera-eral developments of the prese clipping industry and Mr. Bur-relle has made a special study of the work he created several years ago.
